All information of a potentially discriminatory nature will only be sought and kept if it is a legal requirement and if the Employment Business should know about factors that may affect job placement, such as disability or impairment.

Relief

- All temporary workers and clients have access to relief procedures via the equality action plan, company complaints grievance procedures and the formal feedback channels if they feel that they have been unfairly discriminated against.

Contributing factors

• In achieving a non-discriminatory workplace and service to clients, the Employment Business will take the following contributing factors into consideration:

- Age
- Religious beliefs and holidays
- Culturally and religion related social events
- Issues and situations that may lend itself to discrimination based on Ethnic origin, Skin colour, Disability, Race, Religion, Gender and Personal sexual preferences

Monitoring

- The Employment Business will monitor the effectiveness of the steps taken to ensure equal opportunity. These steps will include:

- Formal feedback mechanisms for clients, patients and affected persons (such as family and relatives).

Action Plan

- The Employment Business maintains an equality action plan that seeks to monitor issues affecting equal opportunities. The basis for this is the self-declaration by temporary workers or clients of attributes that may cause them to be discriminated against. These declarations are not a requirement and temporary workers and clients do this after being told that this information is not a requirement for temporary work or service.
- The equality action plan will be reviewed twice a year and all information captured during that period will be used to determine the possible existence of discrimination and how the current staff and client profile should be managed to avoid discriminatory practices.
